MILESTONE MOMENT FOR NEW BATH HOTEL

The team at Apex City of Bath Hotel is celebrating yet another milestone as the grand opening of the new £35m property approaches.

Contractors have removed the final piece of scaffolding around the hotel's façade, revealing the building – constructed using Bath stone – in all its glory.

Just over 1,000 tonnes of Base Bed Stone, sourced from Stoke Mill Mine just outside Bath, was used in the hotel's construction.

The removal gives locals and visitors to the historic city the first full glimpse of the 177-bed property, which will be Bath's largest hotel.

Tim O'Sullivan, General Manager of Apex City of Bath Hotel, said: "Construction on the hotel began around two-and-a-half years ago, so the scaffolding coming down marks a significant milestone on our journey towards opening to the public.

"We're entering the final countdown, and it's fantastic to finally see the façade in its full glory. And with more than two-thousand square feet of Bath stone covering the façade, we think it fits nicely into the local landscape. We're looking forward to welcoming locals and visitors inside to see what lies in store once we're officially opened."

Opening in August, the four-star Apex City of Bath Hotel will boast 177 bedrooms, restaurant, bar, gymnasium and pool alongside Bath's only city centre conference facility for up to 400 guests. The hotel is ideally located within easy reach of tourist destinations, and just five minutes' walk from the world famous Roman Baths.
